

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a network system capable of providing various services dispersed among the plural apparatuses, the invention provides a service management apparatus capable of managing the service information on the services present in the network system, also transfers the managed service information in response to a request from an external apparatus, and also renews the service information based on the quality of the service.

5

10